

American Football Formation/Play: Relativity and Recognition

William Johanson

Utilizing computer vision and deep learning, create the ability to take a video (coaches film) of a standard game of American Football and being able to map the players position to certain formations and plays relative to their position on the field. Useful for developing game trend analytics.

